OUR HISTORY

Briggs & Stratton Corporation, with headquarters in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is the world's largest manufacturer of air-cooled gasoline engines. The company, which began in 1908, did not become the largest manufacturer of air-cooled gasoline engines easily nor directly. During its history it has pursued products as diverse as electric refrigerators, battery eliminators, and coin-operated paper towel dispensing machines.

This penchant for diverse value-creating opportunities is evident within Briggs & Stratton today, as the Company has reinvented itself with its venture into the end products business. Now, instead of solely manufacturing air-cooled gasoline engines for the outdoor power equipment industry, Briggs & Stratton produces Walk behind Lawn Mowers, Riding Mowers and Tractors, Zero Turn Mowers, Snow Throwers, Home Generator Systems, Portable Generators, and Pressure Washers.

In June 2004 Briggs & Stratton acquired Simplicity Manufacturing, Inc. of Port Washington, Wisconsin; included in the acquisition was the McDonough, GA plant (formerly Snapper). Our products are widely distributed through independent dealers under the brand name Simplicity®, Snapper®, Ferris®, and Giant Vac®.
